

The Enduring Freedom Foundation pays tribute to the men and women of the five branches of the United States Armed Forces who have provided enduring freedom for America and the world.

The mission of the foundation is to place patriotic artworks in public areas throughout the United States.

In 2006 the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs, General Peter Pace, officially accepted the Enduring Freedom Tribute for permanent display in the lobby of the Pentagon.

“I hope that you are as proud as I am of the young men and women in uniform who have volunteered to man the ramparts in defense of freedom and whose dedication, valor and skill increases so much our chance of living in a world of peace.”

— President Ronald Reagan
